PORK PICKIN'S

by Earl Pickett

Appomattox Pork Producers

The Piedmont Junior Market Hog Show took place last Thursday at Farmville Livestock Market. The show had a very fine turnout. The top selling hog sold for $116/cwt to The Fidelity National Bank. Due to incomplete listings we will report all of the winners in next week's column.

This week saw market hog prices climb to well over $60/cwt across the nation. Even with these high price of hogs, the grower must be on his toes and keep a high degree of management in his operation.

The hog-corn ratio for the week ended Aug. 4 was 22.4, compared with 20.0 the previous week and 22.2 a year earlier.

Feeder Pig prices continued their steady rise. In Nashville, Tenn., on August 3rd, they sold for as high as $1.27 per pound and Iowa feeders sold for as high as $1.16 per lb.

Sow slaughter remains high indicating a possible further reduction in the number of breeding animals remaining on the farms around the country.

The National Pork Producers Council, in cooperation with Dole Pineapple and Kikkoman Soy Sauce, is conducting a nationwide Hawaiian Luau prok promotion during August. The Luau promotion includes consumer magazine advertising, in-store promotion, and features the distribution of a new Hawaiian Luau cookbook. This is another example of how the nickel checkoff is working for hog producers.

Virginia Peach Crop

Phillip Dollins, Supervisor of the Apple and Peach section for Division of Markets, Virginia Department of Agriculture and Commerce, reports that Virginia's peach crop is approximately 50 per cent of the normal production. However, this figure is still as large or larger than last year's crop and all indications are that this crop will, perhaps, exceed last year's quality." This increase in quality is the result of desirable rainfall re c e n tly experienced just prior to the harvest season.

Harvest of Freestone peaches has already begun in the Roanoke and Piedmont areas and will begin next week in the Northern area. Dollins reports that peach size and quality for all varieties are good, and that this crop presents an excellent opportunity for home processing. Home-canning and freezing are recommended because of a prevalent shortage of canned peaches on the retail market as the supply for commercial processing is substancially down from past years.

Dollins sums up this year's peach harvest by saying that "we have an adequate supply of peaches, quality is good to excellent, and they continue to be an excellent buy across the state."

EXERCISE ALERT DRIVING

RICHMOND- The opening of schools this month increases the need for alert driving.

"Motorists, especially those driving through school zones or near bus stops, may need a reminder to watch for students going to and from school. Students naturally tend to congregate in these areas, increasing the need for cautious driving," according to John T. Hanna, director, Highway Safety Division of Virginia.

"Be particularly careful when approaching i n t e r s e c t i o n s They are a dangerous area because of the heavy volume of traffic and pedestrians which meet there," continued the safety official. "Don't forget, when approaching a stopped school bus, even from right angles, you must stop."

Hanna said a national survey revealed that 24 per cent of all fatal accidents occur at intersections. "To help reduce this figure, slow down and look, especially for children, before entering an intersection.

"Be prepared for a quick stop. An impatient child might try to cross the street quickly by darting in front of traffic."
